JOHN O. SPENCER, WM. ELADON, SECRETARIES.

PRESS AND PRESIDENT.

THE EMINENT EDITOR DOESN'T CARE FOR EXPENSES

As long as the Executive knows what the E. E. thinks of him—how the papers are examined and clipped from.

WASHINGTON CITY, Aug. 14.—About 200 newspapers are received at the White House daily. These include the large metropolitan dailies, as well as the less pretentious sheets. Only a small proportion of these papers are paid for. Newspaper editors are determined the president shall know their opinion of him, and if he will not pay for the information they will send him the paper free. New York state bonds the list with the largest number of dailies. This is not surprising when it is remembered that the president, Col. Lamont, and two members of the cabinet, Mr. Taft and Mr. Bryan, are from New York. The list of titles Chicago comes next to New York, with Boston third, Philadelphia fourth, and Cincinnati fifth. The representation from New England is very small. The Pacific slope, including California, Oregon, and Nevada, sends but few papers. The list also includes a few foreign papers, probably not a dozen papers in all being sent from that section. These exchanges are carefully read each day by the president. The president's training enables him to go over them rapidly and cut out such articles as it may be advisable to preserve for reference. These, carefully arranged in chronological order, are kept in a scrap-book under the heading of "Foreign Affairs," "Foreign Policy," "Appointments," "Current Comment," "Indian Affairs," and the like. Col. Lamont has a quick, retentive memory, and he can call the president's mind to any particular paper in any section of the country he may mention.

The system of preserving newspaper opinions by the occupants of the White House dates back to the formation of the government. Under President Hayes the present plan of arranging these clippings in scrap-books was first inaugurated. He was very particular that everything relating to his administration should be saved, and scarcely a week passed that the books were not carefully read. Garfield, during his brief incumbency, as chief magistrate, gave close attention to the "scrap," as they are called. Garfield was very sensitive to newspaper criticism, but his eagerness to obtain a knowledge of public sentiment, as expressed through the press, was such that nothing, however hostile or vicious, was overlooked. Arthur was more indifferent. The clerks at the White House say he seldom read the "scrap," except during the few weeks preceding a meeting of congress, when engaged in the preparation of his annual message, and when he had in contemplation some particular nomination whose effect he desired to see upon the country before actually committing himself. In such cases he would allow the information to leak out "semi-officially," and then follow the press comments carefully to see how it was received. If public sentiment condemned it the nomination was never made.

NATIONAL CAPITAL ITEMS.

Kind Who You Indorse for Office.

WASHINGTON CITY, Aug. 14.—Col. Wright, commissioner of the census, is very much annoyed at the report which comes from Colorado that C. P. Judd, a special examiner of that bureau, has been arrested for horse-stealing. Col. Wright says Judd's indorsements were numerous and of a character sufficiently high to have secured for him almost any position within the gift of the government. Judd was an applicant for the commission of the labor bureau. Among his indorsements were Senators Teller and Brewster, Governor Russell of Illinois, and other prominent citizens of Colorado. Several well-known labor agitators wrote strong letters in his behalf. Congressman Rowley later stated that he knew Judd intimately, that they had served together in the army, and that he believed him to be peculiarly fitted for the duties of such a place. The letters of the other gentlemen were equally commendatory. Judd will be dismissed.

Getting Nervous About It.

WASHINGTON CITY, Aug. 14.—The civil service commission is getting very nervous over the opposition cropping out over the country to reform. The Evening Star sounded the alarm in a detailed statement of the danger which the law is in from attack next winter in congress. Several Democratic congressmen have signalled their intention to introduce reform bills or to modify the law in its essential particulars—that which requires the certification of candidates for a vacancy—as to provide, instead, for a pass examination, leaving a large discretion as to whom shall be selected among the graduates. Such a modification would be equivalent to the breaking down of the system and would be resisted as strenuously as a direct repeal of the law. The practical difficulty in the path of any legislation lies in the fact that the Republican senate will resist the attempt to the bitter end.

Saved a Few Thousand More Acres.

WASHINGTON CITY, Aug. 14.—Secretary Lammie, in a deliberate decision, has ruled the order which was made on March 20 by Acting Commissioner Harrison of the general land office, changing the terminal limit of the land grant of the Northern Pacific railroad at Waltham, W. T. The decision states that the order of Acting Commissioner Harrison in changing the terminal limit of the Northern Pacific grant to that road 97,000 acres of land south of the present and former limit. The effect of the decision of Secretary Lammie will be to take this land from the road and leave the terminal limit of the road as fixed by Commissioner McFarland on Aug. 10, 1881.

Ordered Back to Their Regiments.

WASHINGTON CITY, Aug. 14.—The following is an order of the secretary of the War Department, dated August 12, 1892, to be ordered back to their regiments, under Secretary Endicott's order: Captain Gregory and Davis of Lieut. Gen. Sheridan's staff, Capt. Dutton (ordnance department), Daniel (Signal Corps), Wherry (Sixth Infantry), Roberts (Seventeenth Infantry), Wharton (Nineteenth Infantry), Ward (Twenty-second Infantry), Lieut. Schellard (Second Cavalry), Long (Fifth Infantry), Howard (Twelfth Infantry), Shaden (Fourth Infantry), and Captain Melling (Twenty-fifth Infantry). First Lieut. James Allen (First Cavalry), First Lieut. A. W. Greeley (First Cavalry), First Lieut. H. T. Ennes (Sixth Cavalry), First Lieut. H. C. Dunwoody (Fourth Cavalry), and First Lieut. Robert Clark (Fourth Cavalry).

Stevenson Running the "Machine."

WASHINGTON CITY, Aug. 14.—Postmaster General Vilas left Washington, Thursday, for his home in WI. He will stop on the way at Chicago, and will be absent until about Sept. 10. During his absence First Assistant Postmaster General Stevenson will act as the head of the department.

Another Sucker in Luck.

WASHINGTON CITY, Aug. 14.—William D. Haynes, of Illinois, has been appointed chief clerk in the office of the first assistant postmaster general, viz. James H. May, transferred to a clerkship. Mr. May ordered the postal service in 1897, and was appointed a clerk in the postoffice department in 1845.

One Fee They're Not Entitled To.

WASHINGTON CITY, Aug. 14.—The attorney general has decided that pension agents are not entitled under existing laws to a fee of 50 cents for paying fees to attorneys for pensioners.

CONDENSED NEWS.

WASHINGTON CITY, Aug. 14.—The secretary of the treasury has awarded a silver medal to Charles H. Miller, for heroism in rescuing James O'Neill from drowning at Asbury park, New Jersey.

WABASH REORGANIZATION.

The Plan Adopted by the Bondholders in London.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—A dispatch received from London at the office of the Wabash company in this city announces that at a meeting of Wabash bondholders Thursday the following plan of reorganization was unanimously adopted with some slight modifications:

1. Reorganization under both mortgages.
2. New company to issue debenture mortgage bonds equal to 5 per cent interest, but dependent upon income and not cumulative, of which $3,500,000 shall be preferred. Bonds to have voting privileges. Which amount of bonds, $3,500,000.
3. Into these bonds convert several mortgage bonds, $10,000,000, collateral trust bonds (indorsed debt preferred bonds, $3,500,000), reserve for stock and bonds, $4,000,000; reserve for use of new company, $500,000. Total, $30,000,000.
4. The preferred bonds issued for interest debt to be redeemable at the option of the company after five years at any time within twenty years from the date of the mortgage. 5. Issue new preferred bonds to the holders of the old stock, old stock, and other same to old stockholders who will subscribe for the new bonds reserved for this purpose, and at the rate of $3 per share for preferred and $1 per share for common. The holder of 100 shares of preferred stock would thus receive 100 shares of the new preferred stock and 100 shares of the new common stock for $300 of the new bonds. The holder of 100 shares of common stock would receive 100 shares of the new common stock for $100 of the new bonds.
6. The holders of new bonds to subscribe for the reserved bonds to the value of the amount of bonds issued to them as above indicated. The amount of new bonds to which the subscription would apply is $23,000,000. Two per cent on this amount will produce $460,000.
7. The cash received from the new stock and bond subscription will provide about $4,000,000 as follows: Two hundred and thirty thousand two hundred and thirty shares of preferred stock at $3 per share, $1,341,300; 277,330 shares common stock at $9 per share, $2,495,970; 250,000 shares of new bonds at 2 per cent, $5,000,000; total, $4,000,000.
8. The new bonds or holders thereof agree to take pro rata all stock in default and pay the subscription for the new stock and bonds in stock and bonds appropriated to such defaulting stock.

The Conservative Dilemma.

LONDON, Aug. 14.—Mr. Francis who has been called upon to resign his post as secretary of the Conservative party, has now brought suit against him for libel, the latest charge being that he had asserted that Francis' charge against him was blackmail.

Mr. Pearce states that he does not intend to resign the suit. His efforts to consider Mr. Francis a crank, Mr. Pearce was proven Thursday at the first sitting held by the commission on trade disputes of which he is a member. He looked haggard and worried.

Miss Francis in an interview, admits illicit relations with Mr. Pearce, but exonerates him from the charge of having seduced her. She says she has not seen him for three months. She has been trying to earn a living since the separation, and had secured a position as companion to the wife of a well-known merchant when the unfortunate encounter between her father and Mr. Pearce gave publicity to her position. She accuses her father of wishing to blackmail Pearce, who she says never treated her unkindly.

Ravages of the Scourge.

MADRID, Aug. 14.—The accounts of the ravages of the cholera in Granada are horrible. Scores of victims are said to drop dead daily in the streets, their bodies often remaining unburied for hours, exposed to the scorching heat. There is no attempt at ceremony in burial. The corpses are hurriedly gathered up at night and thrown into a ditch, as the case may be, into a common trench.

Manchester, Aug. 14.—There were thirty-five deaths from cholera here Thursday.

MADRID, Aug. 14.—The director of public works, and the wife of another government official died of cholera Thursday.

A Wife-Murderer's Will.

THOR, N. Y., Aug. 14.—James Horace Jones, who murdered his wife July 1, 1884, was hanged here Thursday morning. The murderer passed the night in prayer and refused to eat breakfast in the morning until he had received the holy communion. He made a will Wednesday night bequeathing all body to Father Ravenscroft, his spiritual adviser, with a request that the clergyman would see it decently buried and protected from mutilation. He left his heart to Rome and his soul to heaven. Jones had been married to his wife, who he appeared perfectly cool, refusing to say anything. He was pronounced dead in twelve minutes.

THE UNKNOWN DEAD.

DESCRIPTION OF THE POTTER'S FIELD OF NEW YORK.

Hundreds of Dead Whose Kindred Are Well-to-Do—One Hundred and Fifty Bodies in One Grave—Whom Nobody Cares.

[New York Times.] In 1893 the commissioners of charities and correction found it necessary to find a burial place for the dead of the large lot of the east side of Hart's island, up the sound some twenty miles or more from the city, was secured. During the war the island had been used as a camping ground for Union soldiers, and also as a place of imprisonment for the rebel soldiers, and the first burial of the dead there were Union soldiers. A great little Union cemetery where sleep hundreds of those who were killed in the war of the Union, and the island, and a beautiful soldier's monument and scores of lesser marble tombstones mark the resting places of those who died while campaigning on the island.

Since 1898 some 100,000 of the city's poor, friendless and unknown dead, have been buried in this city cemetery, which adjoins that in which are buried the remains of the soldiers. On Mondays and Thursdays of each week the bodies are taken to the Potter's field, which is a place of work-house, penitentiary or other public institution, unless the body is claimed by friends or charitably disposed persons and given Christian burial. It is placed in a large 10-foot deep coffin, removed to the morgue for a day or so and thence transferred on one of the city's steamers to Hart's island and buried by a gang of work-house employees who are detailed to bury the dead. When a person dies in a public institution or in his or her nearest friend or relative is informed, and if the latter are able the city will take measures to compel them to bury the body.

Every city is often shocked. It is nothing new to hear of a husband who is able refusing to bury a wife, or of a wife refusing to bury a husband, or of a father or mother refusing to give a son or daughter a decent burial, or of an indigent who refuses to bury his parents. But there are those who, even if as poor as the mythical church mouse, will even beg for the means to so bury a coffin and a burial plot elsewhere for some of the poor have been known to buy themselves the very necessities of life, to go to the Potter's field, and there, in the face of their kind and kindred, to place in a pauper's grave. And in the Potter's field, hundreds of the dead whose kindred are known to be well-to-do. There are some of the pitiable side the poorest outcast and the one pushed child of fortune. There are many of the thousands who think it a sin and a disgrace to allow their kindred to be buried at the expense of the city in a Potter's field. Yet there are those whose bodies are buried, and who do not care who knows it, and who are buried in the Potter's field. One hundred and fifty bodies are placed in each pit, and the coffins are packed as closely together as sardines in a box.

The burial gang also consists of work-house employees detailed from the branch work-house on Ward's island, which is in charge of Warden Dugan. As an extra inducement the burial gang is allowed rations of tobacco and poor whisky. The duty which they perform is one of the most menial and the most repulsive of the city. The men go about their work at the pits as curiously as if they were handling logs. Sometimes the coffins are broken, and part of a human body may be seen, and laughs and jokes are heard as it is dashed into the hole. Then again human blood trails over a coffin. The burial gang consists of some of the city's poorest, and the most repulsive of the city. The men go about their work at the pits as curiously as if they were handling logs.
